

RUTLAND RAN AWAY IN 13TH

Change of Pitchers Proved Disastrous For Locals.

VISITORS LAND ON BURNS

After Smith Had Pitched Winning Ball for Twelve Innings, Getting Two Runs and Taking Game, 4 to 2.

"I'm going in to win this game right now, just for spite," said Paddy Duff, when, at the end of the 12th inning of Saturday's game with Rutland with the score tied at two apiece, the local management would not call the game to let the visitors catch a train. And straightway the pouting Paddy seized the willow, strode majestically to the plate, assumed a statuesque pose, chieftain-like, and waited for Burns to deliver the ball. Burns delivered. Paddy, daintily thrusting forward his left foot, nicely balancing himself on his right, swung. "Swish!" went the willow wand, ferociously waded in the pouting Paddy's mighty grip. "Bill!" resounded the blow of the contact between bat and ball. It's hard to tell where the ball is now. Suffice it to say that the last seen of it the sphere was hurtling through space over the right field fence. And victory for the Intercity took flight at the same time. Paddy was as good as his word.

Then just to show there was no doubt about the victory, the Marble Cityites added one more to their tally, making the score 4 to 2, after one of the most interesting games of the season, as well as one of the longest.

The fatal mistake of the home team was in taking Smith out of the game after he had pitched twelve innings of winning ball, and substituting Burns. In twelve innings Rutland had got only seven hits off Smith, and they had made only two safe ones since the sixth inning. To be sure, Smith momentarily weakened in the 12th by giving two free passes to first, but he immediately pulled himself together and struck out the next man, closing the inning. Unless he was played out, he should have been kept in the box. The visitors took to Burns as a duck takes to water, getting two hits and a free pass, with an error mixed in, all in the unlucky thirteenth.

Doerschler, the former Brooklyn pitcher, was in the box for Rutland, keeping the nine hits well scattered for the most part, striking out six men, hitting another, and giving two bases on balls. Still he was no better than Smith, who was handicapped by some costly errors on the part of the Giants.

Ashmore worked in two misplays, both of which were costly and Smith himself helped Rutland along another time with a wild pitch. The visitors' only error, by Shean, didn't count in the run-getting. Rutland has been greatly strengthened recently with Dyer at short and Shannon at third. Both killed some apparently sure hits Saturday. For the locals McMahon, who was back in the game, still limping from being spiked, was just in the right place every time in right field, making four put-outs and figuring in a pretty double play in the first inning.

Apperious and Uniac were strong with the bat, the former with a home run and a single, and the latter with a single and a double. Besides Duff's home run, the features of Rutland's stick work were two hits each by Cotter and Doerschler.

How the Scores Were Made. The Giants got out of a bad hole in the third after a hit by Doerschler, a passed ball, a free pass to Carroll, and a sacrifice by O'Hara, when Cotter struck out and Stankard stopped Shean's wallpaper and by a remarkably quick recovery got his man at first. They signaled their getting out of the hole by making the first score in the same inning. After Smith had popped to first, Ashmore got hit by the ball and Dorman singled. Ashly and Dorman then gave an exhibition of base-running by executing a double steal, the former scoring a minute later on Uniac's drive to short stop. Apperious closed by popping to second.

The score was evened up by Rutland in the sixth on a hit by Shean, a stolen base, a sacrifice by Shannon and a wild pitch by Smith. Another score was cut off by fast fielding when Dyer got a hit, stolen second and tried to score when Stankard fumbled Ray's grounder. Uniac came to Stankard's rescue and shot the ball home just in time to nip Dyer.

The Intercity forged ahead again in the same inning when Apperious lifted the ball over the fence for a homer. McMahon and Shaughnessy worked in hits but with the assistance of a passed ball and a base on balls the locals couldn't get across the plate. Nor could they do any better in the seventh after Uniac had doubled and Apperious had rolled the ball down the third base line for a scratch hit. Morey, who was running for Uniac tried to score on the scratch and was caught, Shannon to Duff. That was really the last chance the home team had to connect with the rest of the game. After that Stankard was the only man to connect with the ball. He got a double in the eleventh, but died on second. Doerschler disposing of Shaughnessy's grounder and striking out Eaton who was called in to bat for Ball.

It was the same with the visitors up to the thirteenth, when the mistake of putting Burns into the box was made. Duff started the landslide with a home run. Dyer struck out, but Ray got a free pass. Doerschler fanned and then Ashmore dropped Stankard's rather low throw on Carroll's grounder, followed by O'Hara with his first hit of the game, scoring Ray with the second run of the inning. Dorman took care of Cotter's grounder.

BASE BALL NOTES.

The Rutland bunch are comers. Umpire Ready was treading on comparatively safe ground Saturday. There was scarcely a kick registered. The pleasure of the game was enhanced fifty per cent because of the absence of wrangling.

Burns is a good pitcher but he didn't have anything on Rutland Saturday.

Nine times out of ten the man who is brought into the game to bat for some other player doesn't do any better than the poorer batter would do, for the latter has had several chances to gauge the pitcher's delivery. Morey, who batted for Smith in the 12th put up an easy fly and Eaton struck out when he was called on to bat for Ball, in the eleventh.

Duff caught his train, as well as the game; the train was late.

McMahon's knowledge of the Rutland batters stood him in good stead Saturday. Four flies went into his territory and every time he was in the right spot. He also tried to coach Smith on the batter's weaknesses.

O'Hara was saved a rank error when he dropped Shaughnessy's fly in the second and was able to get Stankard at second on an easy force-out, the latter having hugged first with the belief that the ball would be easily caught.

The Giants are the extra-inning ball team of the Northern league.

Rutland comes back to us tomorrow.

Ashmore didn't go with the team to Rutland yesterday as he is nursing a lame back because of the way Vickers ran into him the last Burlington game here.

The Giants were guests at tea at the home of Mrs. J. B. Eatee of Montpelier Saturday evening.

DONOVAN WAS HIT HARD.

While Hildebrand Held Burlington to Two Scores—Plattsburg Got Ten.

Plattsburg, N. Y., July 17.—The Queen City aggregation was an easy proposition for the home team Saturday afternoon. After the second inning they did not score while the home team had no trouble with Donovan, and romped around the bases. Hildebrand pitched a strong game, holding the visitors easily. The score was 10 to 2. Bottemus and Cote were the heavy hitters for Plattsburg, each getting three hits off the Tufts College pitcher, while Dowd did the best work at the bat for Burlington.

APPERIOUS' CASE.

St. Albans Messenger Expresses Its Opinion.

As was said at the beginning, there is no occasion for any hysterics over this (Apperious-Matthews) matter. Our social institutions have been too long established back here in New England, the popular notion of fairness to the black man has been too long and too severely tested in the state that passed the first constitutional prohibition of slavery on the continent, for Mr. Apperious to ruffle our calm and dignity a little bit. He will be a wise boy if he returns to Alabama rather than make a fuss, but he would be a wiser boy if he stayed right here in Vermont and played with our negro friend long enough to learn good manners from him if nothing more. Incidentally, let some good friend whisper in his ear that the days of fire-eating chivalry, this snorting, quivering sensitiveness of the Southern gentleman, sah, have played out and gone by. It is a poor play to the grandstand nowadays.—St. Albans Messenger.

ARE DISSATISFIED.

Intercity Management Claims Burlington Has Violated Agreement.

The directors of the Intercity base ball team are dissatisfied with the position that the Burlington management has taken this year, the same as last, and they are in a frame of mind that will not permit the thing to continue. They claim that Burlington has violated every regulation of the Northern league agreement, by going over the salary limit, by hiring more than the number of players allowed etc. The season may be finished with three teams, if Rutland and Plattsburg agree to it, and they are as dissatisfied with Burlington as is the Intercity management.

Not After Matthews.

There was a report about town yesterday that the Boston National league people were trying to get Matthews, the colored short stop of the Harvard "varsity" team.

Rumor had it that Matthews was willing to sign but that the Boston management did not want to put the matter through until the consent of all the other clubs was given.

When Fred Tenney was seen in regard to the story he laughed at it and said it was certainly information to him, and that he had never had the slightest inkling of such a deal. He denied emphatically that he had asked the consent of the other clubs to allow Matthews to play with the Boston Nationals.—Boston Herald.

DENIES SENATOR NEW TRIAL.

Judge De Haven at Portland, Ore., Overrules Mitchell's Motion.

Portland, Oregon, July 17.—Judge De Haven in the federal court Saturday overruled a motion for a new trial. Mitchell was recently convicted of using his office as United States senator in the furtherance of the legal practice of the law firm of Mitchell & Tanner of Portland. The firm was deeply engaged in legal work in connection with public lands in that state. Attorneys for the defense obtained a writ of habeas corpus to file a bill of exceptions and a writ of error. Judge De Haven did not pass sentence.
